

Let's Save the Fairytale World!

The European Meeting of Fairytale Creatures was very unusual. The chairman of the Federation of Good and Evil Forces – Grandpa Know-It-All – gave a fiery speech. His words spoke out against the boring, same-old life in Fairytale Land. And that's when it all began...

The fairytale creatures jumped from their chairs and started shouting:
“Down with Fairytale Land! We want a real life!”

And they didn't stop there. They rushed home and started packing for the big move – from the world of stories to the real world!

Snow White packed her seven dwarfs into her fancy Kappa suitcase, the witch Hermina filled her five-speed broomstick with magic fuel, Maya the Bee woke up sleepy Willy and packed a book called “Bee Proverbs for Every Day,” and Silly John took his Brain in his hand (finally!) – and off they all went to live among real people.

The Devil got a job at a steel factory – it was warm there, just like home. But since he's never happy, he started doing some mischief on the side. People thought their troubles were caused by bad luck, rising prices, or weird weather over Scandinavia – but guess who it really was? Snow White became head of winter road safety and sold allergy-free blankets in villages. Willy worked as a security guard and sometimes – if someone gave him a bottle of something strong – he'd “forget” to watch the gate.

Maya the Bee ended up as a science teacher. She rewrote lesson plans, made worksheets, used the copier non-stop, and had to deal with grumpy parents and strange students. But deep down inside, all the fairytale creatures started to feel funny. Something was wrong. They were trying so hard to be like humans, they forgot who they really were – magical beings who believe that good always wins in the end.

One day, people discovered that Snow White's blankets weren't that magical after all – and she got in trouble. Willy lost his job. Maya was reported to the School Inspector.

Then the creatures started getting messages – emails and texts – calling them back. They met again for a special meeting. Their dreams of a perfect life on Earth were gone.

They knew now they had made a mistake. So they packed their bags and went back to Fairytale Land. And they lived happily again.

Well... almost all of them. One creature stayed behind. Guess who? Yes – him. The one who loves causing trouble. The one who wants to rule the world and make sure that evil always wins. Can we stop him?

Yes, we can!

If we all go back to the fairytales and learn their wisdom – we can outsmart him together!
